

higher education to place before its disciples the noblest ideals, to teach the life-lifting lessons of religion, science, morals and society. With these truths

High ideals must precede achievements. In the fierce race of life the scholar must learn the love of nature, of man and of God. Then in their zeal and devotion the young men and young women will be able to lend a helping

Young people go to college for better or for worse. Get the best college education you can, urged Dr. Jordan, for there is only one chance. Fine buildings and splendid equipment alone do not make a university strong and use-to the best. It matters not so much what the studies are as it does who are to do your teachers.

The final teacher must be able to give a source of inspiration to the students and plot the developing mind into the realms of the unknown.

Let us collect the best of you for you, concluded Dr. Jordan, and then make your life and works stand out as the strongest plan in behalf of higher education.

UNIVERSITY RECEPTION.

Friends of Dr. Jordan Gather to Greet Him.

The reception tendered to Dr. Jordan by the faculty of the state university last night was in every way successful. Immediately after the lecture in the Assembly hall the body of teachers and students met in the main entrance to partake of the hospitality of the faculty and to shake the hand of Dr. Jordan. From 2:30 on a throng of 500 or 600 people filled the main room to room as the attractions ended.

The reception was given in the main hall of the first floor, room 13, the largest of the room, and the faculty reception room. Both the president's office was open to all, and that carpet upon which so many have trod with fearful tread was the source of awe to all last night. Seidman, the university

The president's office and the faculty room were adorned with palm trees and busts and draped in cardinal, the colors of Leland Stanford. The main hallway and room 15 were artistically decorated with national colors and flags, claret and silver. The main hall was decorated with morotea palms and busts. From a platform in the main hall an orchestra discoursed most pleasant strains of music. Room 15 was filled with tables, from which the dainty refreshment was served during the entire evening.

But Dr. Jordan was the center of attraction, and almost every person present turned his head to catch a glimpse of the shake with him. Among others present were Regent W. W. Ritter and wife, Regent Frank Pierce and wife, Professor Kead of the Brigham Young academy of science, J. H. Brimhall of the Agricultural college, J. H. Brimhall of the Brigham Young academy of Provo, Superintendent William Allison of Ogden and J. R. Supt. of the Co-op of the same place, County Superintendents Vye Cott, of Salt Lake, Wilson of Weber, Brown of Junb. H. P. Brown of Millard, J. L. Brown of Utah and Frank Evans of Nevada.

Of the university faculty these were present: President Kingsbury and wife, Professor Toronto, William M. Stewart and wife, G. M. Marshall and wife, J. H. Brimhall and wife, J. H. Brimhall and wife, Orson Howard and wife, W. G. Roylance, R. F. Lyman and wife, Dr. R. Allen and wife, Dr. Q.

The entire evening was most pleasant and all expressions of respect came from the committee. Professors Royland, Merrill Cummings and Babcock, exhibited much taste and good judgment in the arrangement and maturing of the event. The college women proved themselves as they have tried to do before the best kind of hostesses. The university paid its tribute of respect to Dr. Jordan in a most pleasing and successful manner.

CONDITIONS IN BOSTON.

Local Investors Believe the Worst
Has Been Passed.

The condition of Bingham stocks in Boston was improved yesterday. Centennial-Eureka was in strong demand around $22.00 and $23.00; Bingham Copper and Gold, $11.00, and Utah Consolidated, at $24.25 up to $27.00. No sales of United States were reported.

Local investors express the opinion that the worst is over, and those who were fortunate enough to gather in some of the cheap stocks are now waiting for the advance to come when they can cash in down their profits.

Centennial-Eureka is still in demand locally at the present prices, and it was reported that a few orders were sent east for it yesterday.

UTAH'S MINES.

A story on every active district in the state will be found in the New Year's Herald. All other industries exhaustively handled. Just what you want to send to friends in other states. Price, 5 cents.

CHANGING QUARTERS.

Lawyers Move Their Belongings to Other Offices.

Attorney P. L. Williams was busy yesterday moving his office from the Pioneer building on First South to the Commercial block on Second South where he has the four fine rooms previously occupied by Zane & Rogers of the fifth floor. George H. Smith and Charles D. Savory will continue to do fire with Mr. Williams. George Sutherland and Waldemar Van Cott were also busy moving their library to their new quarters on Main street with Bennett, Harkness, Howat, Bradley & Richards.
